

■ CHILL-OUT Sunday has arrived. Manchester city centre bars are reporting that Sunday morning has become the new, sophisticated, Saturday night – or at least its antidote. All it needs for maximum enjoyment is a slight hangover, relaxing lounge music, the Sunday papers and brunch accompanied by an essential Bloody Mary.

Revolution pioneered the trend with the likes of All Bar One, Loaf and the Pitcher and Piano and now the rest are getting in on the act. A survey undertaken by James White Drinks, makers of spiced tomato juice Big Tom, has shown a 75 per cent of people taking the Sunday chill-out therapy over the last two years.
