

You say tomato...

The perfect hangover cure – and a damn fine pick-me-up anytime – the Bloody Mary isn't to everyone's taste, but is still a classic in the world of cocktails.

But which bar in Birmingham makes the best?

The makers of Big Tom spiced tomato juice decided to find out for themselves, and, visited Pitcher & Piano ("spicy... not one for the light hearted"), Medicine Bar ("although a little too spicy for some they lived up to our expectations") and Revolution ("fantastic") before deciding the pick of the bunch was All Bar One in Brindleyplace.

They said: "Great for meeting up with your mates on a Sunday afternoon. The atmosphere is a blend of contemporary stripped wood floors, lots of seating on an open plan floor and even a few intimate sofa areas to hide away, enjoy your Bloody Mary and cure that hangover. To add to perfect surroundings and food, the Bloody Marys were gorgeous – made with Absolut Vodka and Big Tom Spiced Tomato Juice topped with more black pepper and served in lovely tall glasses. Everyone agreed that they're absolutely perfect!"
